

Governor Walton, Repudiated Four to One in Election, Carries Fight to Oklahoma Courts

Petition to Have Balloting
Tuesday Declared Void
Filed.

RESTRAINER IS GRANTED

Temporary Injunction Bars Certifying
Returns Until After Hearing;
Soldier Bonus Is Lost and Blame Is Laid on the Ku Klux Klan.

By United Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 3.—Governor Jack Walton moved today to nullify the resolution of Tuesday's state-wide election at which Oklahoma voters approved a constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to start impeachment proceedings against the executive.

Fighting with his back to the wall against removal from office by enemies he claims were incurred through his efforts to establish the supremacy of visible government over the Ku Klux Klan, the governor petitioned the courts to declare the balloting invalid.

On petition of the governor the district court granted a temporary injunction restraining the state election board from certifying the result of Tuesday's election. A hearing will be held later on whether the writ will be permanent and then the district court's final decision probably will be carried to the Supreme Court.

As the legal battle got under way legislators who directed the agitation for the impeachment of Walton met in secret session to outline their plan of action.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 3.—A long-drawn court fight was in progress today to test the legality of Tuesday's election in Oklahoma at which an initiative amendment to the constitution was adopted.

Three other proposed constitutional amendments were defeated. These provided for soldier bonus; death as well as injury benefits under the workmen's compensation act; making the state liable for losses by depositors in state banks which fail.

Returns from 1,577 precincts out of 2,307 in the state show the measure adopted by a majority of 14,732 to 14,732 for the measure and 37,752 against.

The governor claimed he had gained great moral support for his campaign against the Ku Klux Klan as a result of the balloting. He said the Klan would be blamed by the voters for the defeat of the soldier bonus; by workmen for the failure of the compensation law to carry, and by depositors who have suffered losses for the defeat of their measure.

"The Klan is to blame," Walton said.

The vote was extremely light, about half of the 450,000 cast at the last general election in Oklahoma. The governor's supporters and many people remained away from the polls because of Walton's opposition.

Dollings Company Pays $400,000 on $75,000 Earnings

By United Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—In its short existence of three and one-half years the R. L. Dollings Company of Pennsylvania paid out to its stockholders in dividends more than five times the amounts its profits warranted, according to a preliminary report to Thomas H. White, receiver. The report was filed in United States District Court here today.

With a net earning of about $75,000 during the whole time it was in business the Dollings Company paid to its stockholders $400,000 in dividends and advanced a similar amount to its subsidiaries for the payment of dividends not earned, the report states.

The Dollings Company also had the bulk of the $3,000,000 proceeds from the sale of its capital stock to its subsidiaries; some of which were hardly better than promotion schemes.

GERMAN CABINET CRASH IS STAYED

By United Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—The impending German cabinet crash today appeared to have been averted for at least some hours. After five hours' deliberation the cabinet session adjourned at 3 A. M.

The Socialist party agreeing tentatively to Chancellor Stresemann's economic program, with modifications. The Socialist consent came only after long and bitter debate and was not final. Additional Socialist conferences were being held this morning.

"We believe the Socialists will acquiesce," said a government spokesman. Otherwise a most serious crisis is anticipated.

It generally was indicated that in event of a cabinet break Stresemann will declare complete dictatorship. The military today arrested 200 men near the Doberitz camp, outside of Berlin, charging them with preparing for an attempted military coup against the government.

National Banks Are Forbidden to Operate Branches

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Attorney General Daugherty has ruled that national banks are forbidden to conduct branch banks, Controller of the Currency Davies told the congressional committee investigating banking today.

Dawes declared that the branch banking has grown to such proportions in some states that "it threatens the balance of the Federal Reserve System" and that unless it is curbed it will constitute a serious menace to the reserve plan.

Daugherty's opinion, Dawes said, held that national banks might maintain offices for receiving deposits or cashing checks outside the main bank building but could not legally conduct major banking operations outside the main office.

Headless Body Of Man Found in Dressing Room

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3.—Jealousy was believed the motive for the murder of an unidentified white man whose headless, nude body was found in a city dressing room at the South Side municipal pool today.

The body was discovered in the shanty by an employee of a construction company. The head was missing and police declared a trail of blood from the shanty to the waterfront indicated the murderer threw the head into the Monongahela River.

A suit of clothes, apparently worn by the murdered man, was lying near the body, and when searched revealed two postcard photographs of two pretty nurse girls, according to police. The postcard pictures bore love messages from "Inda to Chick."

Governor Calls Law Enforcement Conference Oct. 20

EVERY SALOON IN PHILADELPHIA IS ORDERED TO CLOSE

By United Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Every saloon in Philadelphia will be closed in 24 hours under the padlock law. United States Department of Justice agents and state police today were sweeping through the city serving notices on 1,300 keepers to dismantle their bars, remove the screen partitions and swing doors and stop selling intoxicating liquors in defiance of the Volstead law. The campaign to make Philadelphia bone dry began last night and before the end of today every saloon will be served by warning to stop business at once.

This warning is signed by Attorney Daugherty and State Attorney General Woodruff. The keepers who fail to heed will be prosecuted and a padlock injunction will be asked against their properties.

The crusade to drive saloons out of Pennsylvania is the second that has been launched by Governor Pinchot within two months. Just prior to the anthracite coal strike saloons in five counties in the hard coal region were ordered to close.

X-RAY PHOTOS TO SHOW "MAN" IS A WOMAN

By United Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—X-ray photographs and medical experts were produced in court here today to prove that "Freddie" Thompson, "man-woman," accused of killing Edward G. Tamm in a hold-up, is a woman.

Frank McDonnell, defense attorney, told the jury he would prove that "Freddie" is a woman to controvert claims of the prosecution that the accused is a man.

Frank Carrick, "husband" of the accused, was excused from testifying when he told on the witness stand that he had been married to "Freddie" 13 years. It was held a "husband" could not be forced to testify against his wife.

Mrs. Tamm, the widow of the victim, identified "Freddie" as the person who fired the fatal shot. "Freddie" was in woman's attire at the time of the hold-up.

"Freddie" is wearing half and half attire, consisting of robbly poodle trousers, a silk shirt open at the throat, gray silk stockings and dainty shoes.

Three Negroes Get Six Months to Works Over The Theft of a Dime

Theft of a dime caused three negroes to go to the workhouse for six months today. The trio, charged with vagrancy, were given hearings before Mayor C. C. Mitchell in police court this morning and he meted out the harshest doses administered since his induction into office. They were arrested after one had snatched a pocketbook from a woman pedestrian.

Even had the men escaped their would have been paid for their effort. The only other article in the purge was a rosary.

The men gave their names as Charles Henry, Marshall Rollins and Edward Matthews.

Shortly after 9:30 o'clock last night, Rosa Mayles of York avenue, being accompanied home by Miss Amanda Stafford, was approached by the men, one grasping her purse. He ran down an alley toward the Baltimore & Ohio station.

Miss Stafford called police headquarters and three officers were assigned to the case. The arrests were made soon afterward at the railroad station. The negroes testified against each other, one claiming the other had done the snatching.

The purse was not found on the men, it having been thrown away. None would divulge where it could be found.

All the negroes said they were from Elbridge, Md., and that they had been in the city four or five days. They were staying at Mrs. Nelson's, 17 Meadow lane, they testified.

The mayor wasted no time in sentencing the prisoners to the workhouse and it being evident, he said, they had come here for no good purpose the terms were made the heaviest ever laid down by the chief executive.

Marriage on the Decline in U. S. Census Indicates

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Marriage is a declining institution in the United States, final returns of the marriage and divorce census taken last year, by the Census Bureau and published today indicated.

For the first time in the history of the country the marriage rate has ceased its steady growth and is falling off. The divorce rate, the same returns show, is continuing its growth.

The actual marriage rate for 1922, the bureau reports, was 1,053 per 100,000 population, against 1,055 in 1921, 1,030 in 1920, 936 in 1919, 910 in 1918.

The divorce rate was 138 per 100,000 population against 112 in 1921, 84 in 1920, 73 in 1919 and 53 in 1918.

Marriages performed in this country last year totaled 1,226,418, against 1,010,651 in 1921. The slight increase noted, however, was not proportionate to the corresponding increase of several million in population and hence represented a loss. Divorces obtained last year numbered 148,554 against 112,036 in 1921.

Reports of viewers appointed by the court to investigate a proposed bridge over Tub Run known as Clossbridge and also for the vacating of a road in Upper Tyrone township leading from Valley Works to Owensdale near the Mononite Church property were approved by the court and ordered filed.

The board recommended that the bridge be erected at the expense of the county and that the road be vacated. The road is 4064 feet long and is paved in places. ### Acting Upon Recommendations From the Various State Departments.

IMMIGRATION AND BONUS

Two Important Measures to Be Considered, Along With Americanization, World Peace and Disabled Veterans; Protest Recognition Held

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 3.—The American Legion at its national convention in San Francisco October 16 to 19 will take a stand on numerous questions of international and national policy, as well as problems relating purely to affairs of the veterans, according to reports received at national headquarters here.

Resolutions adopted at the various state conventions during the last few months and which will in turn be presented at the national gathering embrace many problems of national concern.

One of the principal issues to come before the gathering in San Francisco is the question of the convocation of an international air disarmament conference. The movement was started a few months ago by Commander Owsley through the Legion Weekly.

A poll taken of all United States Senators, Congressmen, newspaper editors, college presidents and other prominent citizens expressed overwhelming endorsement of the Legion's proposal to hold an international gathering in Washington to reduce military air forces.

Recommendations made by a number of state conventions of the Legion are that the national body should continue its campaign for the conference until President Coolidge agrees to invite the European nations to confer.

The Legion claims the support of a number of national leaders for the proposed gathering, including Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, and others.

Immigration Proposition.

A proposal to suspend all immigration to this country for a period of five years is certain to receive the consideration of the Legionnaires. The Legion's national Americanization commission has maintained a steady flow of propaganda favoring total exclusion, and 400,000 school children are writing upon the subject, "Why America Should Prohibit Immigration for Five Years." In the Legion's national essay contest.

State convention resolutions charge that present immigration laws are unsatisfactory, because $90,000 aliens have been permitted to enter the country during the past year, nearly twice the quota actually authorized by law.

Americanization for foreigners already in America is proposed in a number of resolutions to be presented at the national gathering. Means suggested are compulsory government schools for aliens, registration of all persons of foreign birth, and a broadening of the scope of patriotic work of Legion posts.

FOREIGN TITLES PUZZLE TO WASHINGTON HOSTESSES

Keeping the Proper Prefix for Guests at Tongue's End Is Difficult Task.

Many and serious are the tribulations of the hostess to official society in Washington, and not the least of her worries is the necessity of keeping at her tongue's end the proper title and prefix for those of her guests who are members of the diplomatic corps. In reference to the customs of a democratic country many of the foreign ambassadors and ministers, together with the members of their staffs and families have adopted plain Mr. and Mrs. as the only titles by which they are to be addressed. Others have not, however, and the official diplomatic list of the State department presents an odd mixture of prefixes gathered from the ends of the earth. In some cases there even appears to be a paradoxical divergence among the representatives of a single country.

J. J. Jusserand, the French ambassador who is dean of the corps heads the diplomatic list, and he is the "Monsieur" of his activity and style himself "Mr. Jusserand." But the next name is not that of "Mrs. Jusserand." Instead, the list reads "Madame Jusserand" and there follows a string of "Madames" and "Monsieures."

The eyes of the hostess after correct names next encounters "Don Juan Blasco y Garayona," the ambassador of Spain and his wife, "Senora Dona Alicia Ward de Blasco," "Senora," "Senora" and "Senoritas" rule generally among the Latin Americans, although the Argentine list is headed by "Mr. Felipe A. Napoléon" the charge d'affaires, while the Uruguayan minister and his wife style themselves "Dr. Jacobo Varela" and "Mrs. Varela."

With the Japanese it is "Mr." and "Madame." The Chinese minister is "Mr. Sao Ke Alfred Sze" and his wife is "Madame Sze" but the consul of the legation is "Mr. Yung Kwai" while his wife is "Mrs. Yung Kwai." Every man except two on the German list has the prefix of "Dr." and of the two exceptions one is a "baron" and the other, according to the official list, is to be addressed as "Herr." The female prefix is "Frau." Among the Italians it is "Signor" and "Signora."

One of Every 12 On Public Payroll

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—One person out of every 12 over 16 years old is fully employed in the United States is on the public payroll and as a result the American people are paying them nearly $1,000,000,000 a year in salaries. It was declared in a statement made public today by the National Industrial Conference board. The board based its figures on the census of 1926.

The analysis shows a public payroll cost to every man, woman and child in the United States of $11 a year. Exclusive of pensioners there are 2,700,000 public servants on the national payroll. The board declared pensioners and other inactive persons numbered 670,000.

Pinchot Begins

Speech-Making Tour of State

By United Press.

READING, Oct. 3.—Governor Pinchot began his tour of the State to get a report on his administration by addressing several thousand here today in attendance the 175th anniversary of the founding of this city.

He asserted his political independence and claimed his record showed the pledges he made have been kept.

"Whatever else may be said of this administration, no one can truthfully assert it has failed to keep its word to the people of this Commonwealth," Pinchot declared. "This is not the time to set forth in detail what has been accomplished in that direction and what yet remains to be done," the governor said, referring to his efforts to "clean up the mess." He said he would "take other occasions in the near future to do that."

"Let me say only that the pledges made in my platform have been kept and that the governor and state government are today as completely unfettered by political promises and as completely free to serve the people of Pennsylvania as the need of the moment may dictate, as they were when I took office on January 16, last," the governor said. "Not only as Pennsylvanians, but also as citizens of Reading, you have an interest in the effort that is now being made to do away with the things that have spoiled the government of Pennsylvania, to make that government clean and efficient and to give every Pennsylvanian the right to hold up his head and be proud because the government of his state has nothing to fear by comparison with that of any other," he said.

MISTLETOE KILLS TREES

Department of Agriculture Labels it Deadly Parasite.

It is the silent signal of the mistletoe hanging from the chandelier means anything to you next Christmas, remember for an instant that in the southwest it is a commercial pest, and that for twelve years scientists have been studying its depredations and how best to exterminate it.

Mistletoe fastens on the yellow pine tree, checks growth, and finally causes the tree to die. By the Department of Agriculture it is called an "infectious and destructive disease," and its eradication is an important problem. About the only way to get rid of this parasite is to cut down the tree in which it has fastened. The mistletoe dies with its host, the yellow pine.

PLAYGROUNDS BENEFIT KIDS

Sioux City Official Finds Decrease in Juvenile Delinquency.

Juvenile delinquency in Sioux City, Iowa, shows a decrease of 20 per cent in the last two years, C. H. Orpin, juvenile officer, declares.

Municipal bathing places, parks and playground activities are responsible for the better moral fiber of children, Mr. Orpin says.

"Taxpayers seldom realize the good investment that is being made by providing facilities for recreational activities which furnish an outlet for the young," said Mr. Orpin.

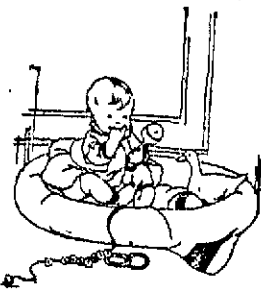

"Exercise and amusement leave the minds of the children clear, and there is very little energy left for crime," Mr. Orpin declared.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A Help in Sitting Up.

One Mother Says: "When our little roly-poly first learned to sit up we found a discarded automobile tire placed flat on the floor saved her many bad bumps. We placed a pad in the center and covered it with a soft blanket, tucking it under the outer edges of the tire. Her playthings were placed within reach and she took keen delight in beating them against the rebounding surface of the tire."

Black in Evidence for Fall Dresses

Darker Materials Take an Early Lead in Modes for New Season.

Black frocks predominate in the early fall exhibits, with navy blue as the only close competitor, notes a fashion writer in the Washington Star. Fabrics are unusually interesting, though, and they more than make up for the lack of variety in color tones. Several new styles have made their appearance—soft clinging, crepe-like silks that lend themselves admirably to drapery and pebbly-surfaced satins that are effective in plainer models, with little or no trimming.

Ecru lace is a favored medium for collars and cuffs, while beige georgette and eyelet-embroidered organdie are also popular. Some frocks, fashioned on simple, straight lines, combine two of them. For instance, one attractive model sets off a pebbly black satin, with the bustline neck bordered by a rolled-over collar of openwork beige organdie frilled with several tiers of narrow self-color lace. Gauntlet cuffs of organdie, also edged with lace fluting, added the only other touch of trimming.

One street frock was of navy blue Poiret twill, cut on rather severe tailored lines, and yet trimmed with soft lace trills, which contradicted the tailored effect. It was fashioned in a straight piece, with a rounded neck bordered by a pointed collar and long sleeves molded to fit the wrists like gloves. A jabot of shirred ecru lace dropped from the collar fastening, while lace ruffles bordered the sleeves, half-covering the hands, and extended

Frock of Navy Poiret Twill With Lace Jabot and Sleeve Frills.

In straight lines up the side of each sleeve, nearly touching the elbow. Green braid, stitched in silver and outlined on one side with a narrow thread of gold braid and on the other with red, outlined both collar and sleeves ends and also framed the lace frills at the side of each sleeve. Additional strips of the three-tone braid were appliqued over each hip in a conventional pattern and extended the length of the skirt at each side, forming pseudo-panels. Three long tassels of dark blue silk dangled from the braid outlines on the hips, adding the finishing touches to the model.

Metallic Fabrics Reign Supreme. A most outstanding thing in the interesting fashions for fall is the undeniable supremacy of metallic fabrics and effects. Entire gowns of richly embroidered cloth of gold are not restricted to the slim draped lines known in the past, but are shown in almost bodacious style in several instances.

Mrs. Cyrus E. Woods Writes Of Horrors of Japanese Quake, Flood and Fire

GREENSBURG, Oct. 3.—Privations, limitations and worries enough for years all packed solidly into a few days and nights; details of horror, suffering and death; struggles as section after section of the cities and country were destroyed; innumerable difficulties, the loyalty of the Japanese and their thankfulness for any aid given to them, form the interesting and thrilling information which has come to Greensburg friends from Mary M. Woods, wife of Cyrus E. Woods of Greensburg, ambassador to Japan from the United States, and the only letter which has been received from them describing in detail all that has happened and of which the newspapers have been so full.

The letter which has been received is one of well handled detail of tragic experiences, vividly written, giving a true picture of just what has occurred in the far eastern land. It tells of the personal effect on the Woods family and how they were forced to move from the embassy when the flames threatened and later consumed it. It tells of the loyalty and work of the servants of the family in attempting to save what they could, and of the makeshift homes, really no homes at all, which the ambassador and his family have been forced to occupy. It relates of the night after night of sleeping in the open which the American diplomat was forced to go through and it recounts of the ten day period in which none of the Woods family disturbed.

Mrs. Woods and her mother, together with one of the maids were making curtains for the embassy when the quake first started, says Mrs. Woods in her letter. At first, she says, she thought she was becoming dizzy from strain, it not being realized by them what was happening. Mr. Woods and his military attaché, Colonel Burness, were in the chancery of the embassy when the shock came. The latter was the first to realize the danger and he immediately led all into the garden. Shortly after the side wall and the corner collapsed on the very place that the two had been standing. Mrs. Woods tells of the fire which followed the earthquake. She said that this was the most horrible of all sights and so far away that they never thought for a minute that it would reach them. Later in the afternoon, according to the letter, one of the assistant military attachés came to the embassy grounds and warned them that the fire was gaining great headway and they had better gather some of their things together. This was done as quickly as possible, writes Mrs. Woods, and inasmuch as their trunks had not been completely unpacked, the majority of their personal things were soon carried to safety.

In the meantime the flames were licking closer and closer to where the official party was huddled. They were hearing the last plash of escape. This was the only chance, but where were we to go, in the way in which Mrs. Woods expressed it. At that one of the language legation officers arrived and offered them his little place about three miles distant. The escape was made midst shower after shower of sparks and in order to keep from catching on fire blankets were wrapped around the party. Arriving at the little place most of the night was spent in packing the ground, said Mrs. Woods, hoping against hope that the embassy might be saved from destruction.

The automobile of the Woods family was saved through the courage of the chauffeur who drove it all night keeping it out of danger spots. Next morning Ambassador and Mrs. Woods went back to the scene over streets that were now unrecognizable. However, nothing but blackened walls remained of the embassy compound.

The most picturesque and unique side of the experience came later, Mrs. Woods writes. They moved into an old historic Japanese house, 600 years old, and owned by a prominent Japanese friend of the family. There they lived for a week in true Japanese style, sleeping on the floors and doing just as the Japanese. Because of necessity they had to go to bed at darkness and arose again at dawn. The Emperor and Empress sent them food as an expression of their thankfulness for what had been done. The official family was guarded night and day, writes the ambassador's wife, because of the great amount of rioting which was going on continuously.

Finally the party made their headquarters aboard the flagship Hiron. Here, inasmuch as the ambassador is commander-in-chief of all American forces in the far east, every salute and courtesy was given him and his family aboard the ship.

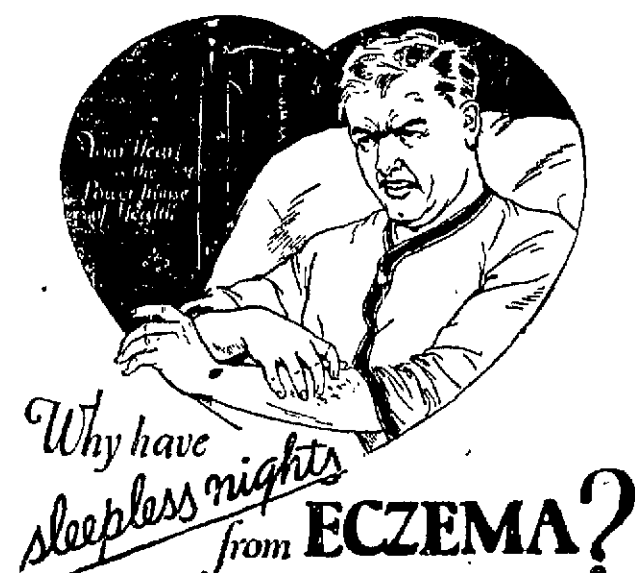

The highest honor that could come to this country throughout the entire proceedings, writes Mrs. Woods, is the offering of one of the imperial palaces to the American ambassador and his family to be their home for an indefinite period. This is something which has never before offered before, not even to visiting royalty, writes Mrs. Woods. The palace is offered completely furnished. It is a true spirit of thankfulness, says Mrs. Woods, the achievement made by this country during the distress has touched Japan as nothing ever has before. It has gone a great way in the opinion of Mrs. Woods to cement a bond of friendship between the two countries which can never be erased. The Asiatic fleet was to the rescue, so quickly that it appeared as a miracle, Mrs. Woods wrote, and was among the first to bring any aid to a nation of stricken people.

Mode Variety Permits Individually Display

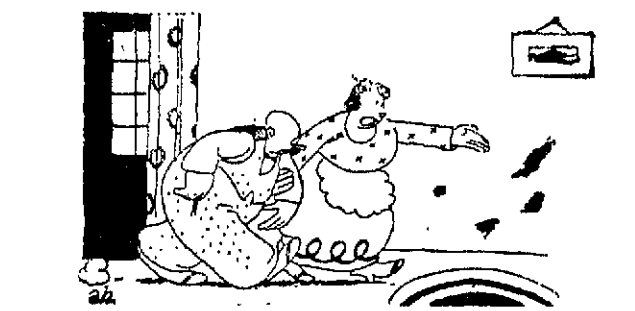

Gone, and almost forgotten, for the time at least, is that sweet simplicity in dress, poets once extolled. Even the little dance frocks, doused and crilled, girlish as they were, innocent looking folds, thinness enough to weight a court train, long, heads, embroidered, striking contrasts in color and in material, ornamentation of all sorts, is the order of the new day. In these effects for plays an important part, with Russian suggestion, and lace adds many a Spanish touch to an American product. Happily, there is variety. All figures may be suited. All types of women are in a fair way to be pleased, and certainly the task of pleasing is made easier for the salesperson. The straight tubelike silhouette is retained. The bonnet skirt remains in the picture. The circular flare that starts at the hip has taken on new impetus by way of inserted gores. Most important of all because most radically different, is the new silhouette that starts out to be tubelike and then suddenly at or below the knee flares out by means of a circular or pleated flounce. In these four distinct figure outlines, we have more opportunity for individual expression than in many a season past.

PASCAL'S COUNTING MACHINE

Devices in Use Today Are Based on Same Principle as That Worked Out by Frenchman.

The third centennial of the birth of Blaise Pascal, "one of the intellectual summits of humanity," was recently celebrated in France. Pascal was an admirable writer, a penetrating philosopher, and a marvelous scientist. He died at the age of thirty-nine.

Pascal is said to have been the first man who ever made a counting machine, that would work perfectly and accurately. It was then a very difficult and complicated thing to count, as the decimal monetary system had not yet been invented. Young Blaise undertook to keep his father's accounts. It was then that he conceived the idea of making a counting machine, says the Detroit News. He worked on it ten years. As there was no gear system in those days he was obliged to make all his pieces himself out of blocks of metal, fitting them to the right shape and size. He overcame all difficulties and obtained a simple machine which made it possible to make very complicated calculations. All counting machines used today are based on this same principle.

Tit for Tat.
Post Tom Daly, the brilliant after-dinner speaker, was the guest of honor last week at a small-town banquet where the mayor introduced him a little overcautiously.

"Mr. Daly," so the mayor concluded his long introduction—"is noted all over the country for his after-dinner speeches. He's like those automatic machines. You put in a dinner and up comes a speech."

Audience roared with laughter. Mr. Daly, much annoyed, rose. He said:

"The mayor's case is different from mine. He puts in a speech, and up comes your dinner."

K. K. K. ISSUE WILL TROUBLE CONGRESSMEN

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The K. K. K. issue will bob up in all sorts of ways to trouble and embarrass members of Congress and candidates for office in the next few months.

It is one of those issues based upon that fundamental human trait—dislike of any man or group of men who disagree with you. It is an issue based upon bitterness, hence it will boggy bitterness.

The prospect that the Klan question will come before Congress and probably before the national conventions of both parties is giving many a politician deep grief these days. They are wishing to goodness it had not been added to the complications of an American political career. For some men in public life injection of the K. K. K. issue is just like being caught between the devil and the deep blue sea. They are going to get into trouble whichever way they jump.

Here are some of the ways in which the K. K. K. question will figure in political history shortly:

1.—It will be a local issue in many states, entering into thousands of election contests for local offices, from constable to governor.

2.—It will affect the fortunes of candidates for Congress in 1931, both new ones and some who seek re-nomination and re-election.

3.—It will be the subject of resolutions to be introduced in Congress this winter, demanding investigation of the Klan's activities on a national scale to determine whether it is an anti-Vietnam organization.

4.—It will figure in a fight in the Senate to prevent seating of Clark Mayfield of Texas elected to succeed Senator Culberson.

The possibility that the disunion cause in Oklahoma, the ostensible cause of which is a revolt between Governor Walter and the Klan, will get into the United States Supreme Court also looms up.

Another means of keeping the Klan issue alive.

Washington is a veritable hotbed of K. K. K. rumors and reports these days. In this respect it is like a fever from any city in the world where the Klan has a bed, a home, or where its real and repeated doubts have brought it into the local atmosphere of Congress by the score are said

Timely Reminders From
The Pennsylvania State College

Storing Vegetables—Thousands of families in Pennsylvania are going to store some vegetables for winter use. It is well to remember that cabbage, turnips, beets, carrots, potatoes, parsnips, and similarly require cool (34 to 45 degrees F.) and moist conditions. Cabbages need cool, dry storage with plenty of ventilation, while squash, pumpkins and sweet potatoes keep better in warm, dry storage (50 to 60 degrees F.).

Clean Poultry Yards—Poultrymen who give attention to their yards and runways have a comparatively low mortality with their young stock. October is the time to get the yards ready for next spring. Plow and lime the soil heavily, then sow with rye or winter wheat. Both make a good green feed for chicks in the spring and help to keep the soil sweet.

Picking Apples—Don't pick winter apples until they are well colored. Well colored apples keep better, have a richer flavor, cook better, and are less liable to storage rot than poorly colored fruit.

Silage Hint—If feeding is not to begin immediately, it may be well to tramp the silage well several times the first week. A covering of a foot or more of such material as wet straw, weeds, or corn stalks, will save the more valuable feed underneath. This covering should not be disturbed until feeding commences, when all the spoiled silage should be discarded.

Feeding Heifers—Heifers in milk which have not yet completed their growth naturally need somewhat more feed than the mature cow yielding the same amount of milk, for they require nutrients for growth as well as for body maintenance and for milk production.

More Supervision Of Highways Would Reduce Accidents

An appalling number of people are killed and injured every year on the highways of this country. Sporadic efforts are made in cities, and occasionally by states, to cure the evil by legislation and regulation of traffic, but in the vast country areas and backwoods, the situation is not so good. The reason is that speed and playing headlight are not the primary cause of highway accidents, says the National Highway Association.

Examination as to the cause of accidents shows that the principal factors are sharp curves, impaired vision due to fences, overhanging trees, embankments, etc., excessive grades, too narrow bridges, slippery road surfaces, dangerous detours, defective road surfaces, weak bridges, and too narrow roads.

If the national or state government permitted a railroad to kill and maim its passengers because of too sharp curves, too steep grades, defective rails, improper signals, or too weak bridges, the people would speedily change the government!

Roads have grown almost imperceptibly from paths through the forests to highways. The automobile traffic was born almost overnight, and is increasing by leaps and bounds. Government is used to highways as safe ribbons of traffic. It has yet taken little cognizance of the dangers which the road, safe for a horse and buggy, provides for a car. It is inevitable that the United States construct a system of trunk-line highways north and south, east and west, throughout the country. Such highways will not have dangerous surfaces, curves, bridges, embankments or crossings. As soon as state, county and town road builders see the difference in the death and injury rate on properly built and maintained highways, their own standards of road construction will inevitably respond. Until that day comes, it is impossible entirely to absolve governmental indifference from responsibility for highway accidents.

"SHADOWS OF THE NORTH" Famous names of this and other are early in the cast of "Shadows of the North," the Universal attraction starring William Desmond, showing at the Paramount Theatre today and Thursday.

Desmond famous for years for his depiction of Irish characters in stirring photographs has been surrounded by Robert Hill director of the picture with one of the most important casts he has ever played with. The feminine role is filled by Virginia Brown Faire who led the cast of "Without Benefit of Clergy." On the team-maker and other famous pictures. Other members of the cast are equally notable.

Fred Kohler is one of the famous names on the list of a team. A character actor known the world over for his success on stage and screen Kohler plays the part of Ray, the striking heavy role in the play. William Welsh who plays Jeff, a soldier, is another striking figure in the play and also well-known for years among Big Time photoplays.

"Shadows of the North" a thrilling and spectacular story of the Canadian Northwest.

The Soisson

"SCARS OF JEALOUSY" An animal is a truer friend than many human beings in the opinion of Marguerite de la Motte.

Marguerite de la Motte has a prize. Alredale recently during the filming of the Thomas H. Ince feature "Scars of Jealousy" in which Marguerite de la Motte plays a leading role. Lambert Hillier the director ordered the fair scene in the hills near Culver City. After all precautions had been taken Marguerite de la Motte entered the water and her cries of distress and the wailing lights as the camera was turned proved too much for Fred the Alredale. He plunged out of the darkness into the swamp and no less than six property men secured a droning trying to capture the animal so that the scene could be shot.

"Scars of Jealousy" will be shown tonight at the Soisson Theatre. Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Money, Money, Money.

The Orpheum

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM" In making the most costly and painstaking motion picture effort of his entire career Orphans of the Storm, an elaborated development of D. W. Griffith's famous play "The Two Orphans" and which under a United Artists Corporation release will be given its final showing at the Orpheum Theatre tonight D. W. Griffith worked night and night for more than one year and gave the most painstaking care that costumes, settings and characterizations should be historically correct.

While many of the costumes may appear strange to modern eyes they are authentic and absolutely correct duplications of the costumes of the period.

The scenes in the film were taken at Mr. Griffith's great estate Orient Point at Mamaroneck, N. Y. which he purchased from the late Henry M. Thackeray several years ago and which is just outside New York City. A number of noted country seats were used in the filming of the scenes among them that of the late Commodore E. C. Benedict at Oyster Bay, Long Island. The guests of old Paris were reproduced by Mr. Griffith on one broad sweep of his place and this section alone required twenty acres of space.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday. In The Last Man.

The Arcade

"THE LIVE AND LAUGH REVUE" which is showing at the Arcade Theatre this week with a cast of 22 persons is proving a strong attraction. The songs and music are new. The plays presented are new and the vaudeville acts for most part are new and original. The same applies to the production novelties. New faces also swell the cast to 22 persons this year. The opening was Darcieella Girl in a lovely lay with a regular plot. There is rhyme and reason for the whole show. New music and above all high class vaudeville make the show doubly entertaining. Leading the list of vaudeville stars is Hal Kiter himself a different type of comedian who never resorts to suggestiveness to get over. To back him up are such features as

"My Sweetie Went Away" mourns deliciously as fox trotted by the California Rhythm. And how beautifully Dolly 75c. Kay can sing it!

OCTOBER 27 SET ASIDE AS NAVY DAY

The Navy League of the United States has asked that the birthday of President Roosevelt, October 27, be designated as Navy Day for the purpose of informing the people of the United States of the needs and uses of the Navy.

President Coolidge has approved the suggestion in the following letter to the secretary of the navy.

It has been pleasing to learn of the plans to continue this year the observance of October 27 birthday of the late President Roosevelt as Navy Day. The date is appropriate in view of the part President Roosevelt played in making our modern Navy of his historical writings dealing with it, and of the demonstrations which as President he gave regarding the effective utilization of naval power as a guarantee of peace.

Our country has undertaken its proper contribution to ameliorating the burdens of armament in the world to place certain limits on our Naval establishment. It is one of the few which it need not be said will always be strictly observed. It is equally desirable that the highest efficiency in men and material be maintained. The Navy is the first line of defense. Our National situation makes it peculiarly important to us for we have never been committed to the policy of a large Army, relying to a greater extent than most favored countries might on the advantage of our location and our confidence in an adequate Navy. The traditions of devotion of the Navy to the highest usefulness and efficiency makes it especially fitting that Navy Day be so observed as to show the country's appreciation of this splendid service. The Navy Department has therefore promised the Navy League the hearty cooperation and assistance of the Navy in making Navy Day a success. Officers and enlisted men of the Naval Reserve Force have been requested to take an active part in the various local observances of Navy Day and to wear their uniforms.

In Los Angeles, where 750,000 persons live, 100,288 played golf last year over the city's municipal course. In Pennsylvania, 5 per cent of the gross receipts of all boxing matches or exhibitions is paid to the state.

EXTRA POWER Where Power Counts!

Why the '1045 Cleveland can outperform bigger and costlier sixes

THE 1924 Cleveland is now known as the finest performer of its class. This is why:

The new Cleveland motor with its modern-to-the-minute design, develops on actual test more horsepower in the driving range than the bulky and less efficient power plant of the average light six.

That extra power is responsible for the thrilling way the 1924 Cleveland rushes past bigger and costlier sixes on hills. It's the same extra power which sends the Cleveland spurting swiftly ahead when you give her the gas in traffic.

Do you know the effect of that extra horsepower when taking a hill in a car of the Cleveland's size and weight? Do you know what an amazing difference it makes when driving in crowded streets?

Why not come in and make your own tests? Unless you actually drive the 1924 Cleveland Six, you cannot appreciate what extraordinary performance can now be obtained in a six so sturdy, so handsome, so comfortable, and yet so moderately priced.

The morning sunlight fell pleasantly on the garden of Windles, turning it into the green and amber paradise which nature had intended it to be. A number of the local birds sang melodiously in the undergrowth at the end of the lawn, while others, more energetic, hopped about the grass in quest of worms. Bona, mercifully ignorant that, after they had worked themselves to the bone gathering honey, the proceeds of their labor would be collected and consumed by little humans, buzzed industriously to and fro and dived head foremost into flowers. Winged insects danced sarabands in the supine. And in a deck-chair under the cedar tree Billie Bennett, with a sketching block on her knee, was engaged in drawing a picture of the ruined castle. Beside her, curled up in a ball, lay her Pekinese dog, Pinky-Boodles. Beside Pinky-Boodles slept Smith, the bulldog. In the distant stable yard, unseen but audible, a boy in shirt sleeves was washing the car and singing as much as treacherous memory would permit of a popular sentimental ballad.

You may think that was all. You may suppose that nothing could be added to deepen the atmosphere of peace and content. Not so. At this moment, Mr. Bennett emerged from the French windows of the drawing room, clad in white flannels and buckskin shoes, supplying just the finishing touch that was needed.

Mr. Bennett crossed the lawn, and sat down beside his daughter. Smith, the bulldog, raising a sleepy head, barked heavily; but Mr. Bennett did not quail. Of late, relations of distant but solid friendship had come to exist between them. Skeptical at first, Mr. Bennett had at length allowed himself to be persuaded of the mildness of the animal's nature and the essential purity of his motives; and now it was only when they encountered each other unexpectedly round sharp corners that he betrayed the slightest alarm. So now, while Smith slept on the grass, Mr. Bennett reclined in the chair. It was the nearest thing modern civilization had seen to the lion lying down with the lamb.

"Sketching?" said Mr. Bennett. "Yes," said Billie, for there were no secrets between this girl and her father. At least, not many. She occasionally omitted to tell him some such trifles as that she had met Samuel Marlowe on the previous morning in a leafy lane, and intended to meet him again this afternoon, but apart from that her mind was an open book.

"It's a great morning," said Mr. Bennett.

"So peaceful," said Billie. "The eggs you get in the country in England," said Mr. Bennett, suddenly smiling a lyrical note, "are extraordinary. I had three for breakfast this morning which defied competition, simply defied competition. They were large and brown, and as fresh as new-mown hay!"

He mused for a while in a sort of ecstasy.

"And the ham!" he went on. "The ham I had for breakfast was what I call ham! I don't know when I've had ham like that. I suppose it's some thing they feed the pigs," he concluded, in soft meditation. And he gave a little sigh into deep lanes where forbidden love lurked. She cast a swift side glance at her father—the unconscious eyes in her fairy story. What would he say if he knew? But Mr. Bennett did not know, and consequently continued to meditate peacefully on ham.

They had sat like this for perhaps a minute—two happy mortals lulled by the gentle beauty of the day—when from the window of the drawing room there stepped out a white-capped maid. And one may just as well say at once—and have done with it—that this is the point where the quiet, peaceful scene in domestic life terminates with a jerk, and pity and terror resume work at the old stand.

The maid—her name, not that it matters, was Susan, and she was engaged to be married, though the point is of no importance, to the second assistant at Green's grocery stores in Windlehurst—approached Mr. Bennett.

"Please, sir, a gentleman to see you."

"Oh?" said Mr. Bennett, torn from a dream of large pink slices edged with bread-crumbed fat. "Sir?"

"A gentleman to see you, sir. In the drawing room. He says you are expecting him."

"Of course, yes. To be sure."

Mr. Bennett heaved himself out of the deck-chair. Beyond the French windows he could see an indistinct form in a gray suit, and remembered that this was the morning on which Sir Malabar Marlowe's clerk—who was taking those Schults and Bowen papers for him to America—had written that he would call. Today was Friday; no doubt the man was sailing from Southampton tomorrow.

He crossed the lawn, entered the drawing room, and found Mr. John Peters with an expression on his ill-favored face, which looked like one of consternation, of meanness, even of alarm.

"Morning, Mr. Peters," said Mr. Bennett. "Very good of you to run down. Take a seat, and I'll just go through the few notes I have made about the matter."

"Mr. Bennett," exclaimed John Peters. "May—I speak?"

"What do you mean? Eh? What? Something to say? What is it?"

Mr. Peters cleared his throat awkwardly. He was feeling embarrassed at the unpleasantness of the duty which he had to perform, but it was a duty, and he did not intend to shrink from performing it. Ever since, gazing appreciatively through the drawing-room windows at the charming scene outside, he had caught sight of the unforgettable form of Billie, seated in her chair with the sketching block on her knee, he had realized that he could not go away in silence, leaving Mr. Bennett ignorant of what he was up against.

One almost inclines to fancy that there must have been a curse of some kind on this house of Windles. Certainly everybody who entered it seemed to leave his peace of mind behind him. John Peters had been feeling notably happy during his journey in the train from London, and the subsequent walk from the station. The splendor of the morning had soothed his nerves, and the faint wind that blew inshore from the sea spoke to him hearteningly of adventure and romance. There was a jar of pot-pourri on the drawing-room table, and he had derived considerable pleasure from sniffing at it. In short, John Peters was in the pink, without a care in the world, until he had looked out of the window and seen Billie.

"Mr. Bennett," he said, "I don't want to do anybody any harm, and, if you know all about it, and she suits you, well and good; but I think it is my duty to inform you that your stenographer is not quite right in the head. I don't say she's dangerous, but she isn't composes. She decidedly is not composes, Mr. Bennett."

Mr. Bennett stared at his well-wisher dumbly for a moment. The thought crossed his mind that, if ever there was a case of the pot calling the kettle black, this was it. His opinion of John Peters' sanity went down to zero. "What are you talking about? My stenographer? What stenographer?"

It occurred to Mr. Peters that a man of the other's wealth and business connections might well have a troupe of these useful females. He particularized.

"I mean the young lady out in the garden there, to whom you were dic-

"What Are You Talking About? My Stenographer? What Stenographer?"

tating just now. The young lady with the writing-pad on her knee."

"What! What?" Mr. Bennett spluttered. "Do you know who that is?"

He explained.

"Oh, yes, indeed!" said John Peters. "I have only met her once, when she came into our office to see Mr. Samuel, but her personality and appearance stamped themselves so forcibly on my mind, that I know I am not mistaken. I am sure it is my duty to tell you exactly what happened when I was left alone with her in the office. We had hardly exchanged a dozen words, Mr.

Bennett, when—" here John Peters, modest to the core, turned vividly pink, "when she told me—she told me that I was the only man she loved!"

Mr. Bennett uttered a loud cry.

"Sweet spirits of nitre!"

Mr. Peters could make nothing of this exclamation, and he was deterred from seeking light, by the sudden action of his host, who, bounding from his seat, with a vivacity of which one could not have believed him capable, charged to the French window and snatched a bell.

"Willistonia!"

Billie looked up from her sketching book with a start. It seemed to her that there was a note of anguish, of panic, in that voice. What her father could have found in the drawing room to be frightened at, she did not know; but she dropped her block and hurried to his assistance.

"What is it, father?"

Mr. Bennett had retired within the room when she arrived; and, going in after him, she perceived at once what had caused his alarm. There before her, looking more sinister than ever, stood the lunatic Peters; and there was an ominous bulge in his right coat-pocket which betrayed the presence of the revolver. What John Peters was, as a matter of fact, carrying in his right coat-pocket was a bag of mixed chocolates which he had purchased in Windlehurst. But Billie's eyes, though bright, had no X-ray quality. Her simple creed was that, if John Peters bulged at any point, that bulge must be caused by a pistol. She screamed, and backed against the wall. Her whole acquaintance with John Peters had been one constant backing against walls.

"Don't shoot!" she cried, as Mr. Peters absent-mindedly dipped his hand into the pocket of his coat. "Oh, please don't shoot!"

"What the deuce do you mean?" said Mr. Bennett, irritably.

He hated to have people gibbering around him in the morning.

"Willistonia, this man says that you told him you loved him."

"Yes, I did, and I do. Really, really, Mr. Peters, I do!"

"Suffering cats!"

Mr. Bennett clutched at the back of a chair.

"But you've only met him once!" he added almost pleadingly.

"You don't understand, father, dear," said Billie desperately. "I'll explain the whole thing later, when..."

"Father!" ejaculated John Peters freely. "Did you say 'father'?"

"Of course I said 'father'!"

"This is my daughter, Mr. Peters."

"My daughter! I mean, your daughter. Are—are you sure?"

"Of course I'm sure. Do you think I don't know my own daughter?"

"But she called me 'Mr. Peters'!"

"Well, it's your name, isn't it?"

"But, if she—if this young lady is your daughter, how did she know my name?"

The point seemed to strike Mr. Bennett. He turned to Billie.

"That's true. Tell me, Willistonia, when did you and Mr. Peters meet?"

"Why, in—in Sir Malabar Marlowe's office, the morning you came there and found me when I was—talking to Sam."

Washington High Opens Its Season Here Saturday; Big Crowd of Fans Will Attend

Gathering of Grid Followers From Many Nearby Points Is Looked For.

TEAM HAS SCRIMMAGE

The Washington High School football team, coming here on Saturday, will be playing its first game this season. To fans who have been interested in high school football for a number of years this is just a reversal of form. For many seasons the Washington team had always been scheduled as the "Thanksgiving Day attraction at Fayette Field—the dual game of the season. Now, although it is not the opening game here, Washington finds itself instead of playing its last game here, coming over for the final contest.

The "Little Presidents" have had some hard luck getting started this season, losing a number of first-string linemen through injuries. On the other hand the substitute material is not so poor. The backfield is reputed to be one of the best the school has ever had. That is, the offense shows its strength in scrimmage but as yet Coach Day has had no opportunity to test the team in actual play. His first opportunity to do this will be on Saturday.

On Monday the high players scrimmaged with the W. & J. freshman team and hard workouts for both yesterday and today were to follow.

Local gridirers are also working hard. Coach Lerow is giving some additional attention to the offense and at the same time he and his assistant will bolster the line with all possible strength. Washington will find a determined band of gritty boys awaiting them on the field Saturday.

The coming game, with Washington possibilities all unknown, is creating considerable interest, both in an out of the school. The largest student body ever on the field this year will be present at the game.

In the Realm of Sports. Coach Lerow put his boys through a stiff scrimmage yesterday. Captain Enos did not engage, being allowed Monday and Tuesday to rest his shoulder, which has been very sore.

Johnny Wilhelm didn't require long to recover from the effects of the collision with May on Saturday. He was back in uniform yesterday, again calling signals.

High School needs just one more good cheer leader. Don Horwick has deserted his post to take up something heavier and far more important—a position on the eleven. The youngster feels he will be of far more use in uniform than in his white duds. None of the same spirit are needed at Fayette Field. Everyone can't be on the team but a whole lot of fellows can be used in scrimmage and for work that will benefit the Varsity in the long run.

The Tornadoes held a scrimmage yesterday. The work-out was spirited and full of dash. The team will be in fine fettle for its opening game on October 27, with the Walsh team of Pittsburgh.

Detroit and Cleveland have entered a tie for second place in the American League. The Tigers defeated Chicago, 7-5 yesterday, while the In-

Four Busy Days For Convention American Legion

among foreigners. It is also suggested that the Legion support a bill providing for the deportation of foreigners who have not become citizens within five years after they come to this country.

Russian Recognition

The Iowa department will propose a resolution protesting the recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States. The resolution occasioned a sharp tilt between Sanford MacNider, past national commander of the Legion, and Senator Brookhart, a Legion member, at the Iowa gathering. Alaska will propose the creation of a "floating court" to naturalize foreigners.

All indications are that adjusted compensation will be again increased at the national gathering. Almost all state conventions held to date have expressed approval of the "bonus" measure, which provides a choice of land settlement, home aid, vocational training and adjusted back pay, based on the length of service, to all men who served during the war.

Adjusted compensation received the unanimous vote of the last two conventions and Legion leaders say the sentiment for compensation is increasing in the ranks of the organization this year.

The welfare of disabled veterans will be considered in many details at San Francisco. Many state conventions have gone on record favoring the liberalization of the Sweet bill to provide compensation for several thousand veterans who do not come within the present regulations, particularly veterans suffering with tubercular and neuropathic diseases.

A number of states desire the construction of additional hospitals by the United States Veterans' Bureau. The convention is expected to express a strong sentiment in favor of the retirement of disabled emergency officers on the same status as those of the regular army.

Care of Orphans

Another problem to be discussed will be the care of orphans of deceased veterans of the war. A Legion committee has predicted that within 11 years after the close of the war 35,000 children of war veterans will need care.

Various state organizations will bring resolutions favoring American participation in an international court of justice.

Creation of a standing committee in the House of Representatives to consider all veterans' legislation is the subject of another resolution.

The Legion is expected to reaffirm its stand for a universal draft of capital, labor and industry as well as man power in the event of another war.

REGAINS HEARING BY JOLT

Resident of Topeka, Kan., Knocked Down by Car, Is Benefited.

Amos McDaniel, seventy-six, of Topeka, Kan., who was knocked down by a car and badly hurt on a street in Topeka recently, was able to be taken home a few days ago. For many years prior to the accident Mr. McDaniel had been totally deaf in his right ear, and his left ear also was badly affected.

After he began recovering it was observed that he could hear partially through the right ear and he explained it by saying it seemed that some obstruction in his ear had been torn loose by the shock of the accident.

ELECTRIFIES LAPLAND LINE

Sweden Opens Vast Iron Fields With Most Northerly Railway.

The electrification of the most northerly railroad in the world has been completed in Sweden. This railway has a length of 235 miles, and is the second longest in the world, being surpassed only by an electrified stretch of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad in the United States.

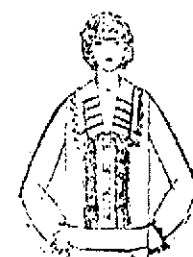

The Swedish road links the iron mining districts of Lapland with the "Göteborg" and "Narvik" ports to the north, and, before being completely electrified, had carried 75,000,000 tons of iron ore, valued at nearly $200,000,000.

FOOTBALL TO LEAVE ILLINOIS FIELD FOREVER

After the Butler game, Oct. 23, Illinois field will pass out of existence as far as football is concerned. All of the home games after that day will be played in the new Memorial stadium. A glimpse into the history of the field is timely.

In 1889 baseball was played in the northeast corner of the present gridiron. In 1891 the first field became a realization. The northern boundary of the field was 100 feet south of University avenue, the southern boundary, near the big tree north of the present gridiron. The foundation of the field was the stones of the first building; these stones were covered by six inches of dirt. The growing need for a grandstand led the students to hold a drive for funds, very much like the students did on the new stadium. The capacity of the stands when completed was 800.

Money for First Glider Track.

W. B. McKinley donated money for Illinois' first glider track. Permission was granted a committee, of which George Hull was a member, to use gliders from the water plant. These were the gliders on which later many track stars of the country were to participate. The northern boundary of the field was later extended to University avenue.

In 1905 the conditions became so crowded that the field was extended south to Springfield avenue. The first football bleachers were built but still the crowded conditions existed and the capacity was increased.
